A New Brand.

A tall, lame negro has been in the habit for a year past of calling at a Michigan Avenue grocery and begging for a few potatoes, a bit of cod-fish, or any thing else likely to be given him. The other day the grocer took a flour-sack and made up a mixture of sand, meal, and flour, and when the negro came around he was almost pulverized to hear the grocer say:

"Now, Sam, if you won't come here again for three months, you can shoulder that sack and take it home."

"Am you in airnest, boss?"

"Yes, I mean what I say."

"Wall, I reckon I'd better catch on to dat chance, an' may de Lawd bress you fur a hun'ed y'ars to come?"

He shouldered the sack and walked off, and was not seen again for three days. Then he entered the store, with the remark:

"Say, boss, I didn't mean to come back, only I want to ax a queshun."

"Go ahead."

"It's about dat flour you gin me. De ole woman an' me doan' take de same view of it. I hold dat it am a new way of grindin' up wheat, an' she says it am new process fur usin' up gravel banks. Kin you frow any light on de subjiect?"

"It is a new brand of my own," replied the grocer. "The wheat was raised on sandy soil. Can you recommend it?"

"N-not'zactly, sah; but if you could change wid me fur a peck of beans raised on a side-hill, an' put de ole trees an' stumps an' stones in one bag an, de beans in anoder, it would save a heap of argyment in de family."—Detroit Free Press.

The native princes of India have lost much of their pomp, and it would not be easy to-day to dazzle the eyes of Europeans as in the early times of British rule before the mutiny. Then the appearance of royalty in public was very impressive. When the King of Delhi showed himself to the people the sound of cymbals, gongs and drums rent the air; then from the palace issued a host of horsemen, mounted on richly-caparisoned steeds, followed by palanquins, and gaudily-painted carriages drawn by oxen. They were followed by a number of musicians with strange instruments, which together produced the most extraordinary jargon of sounds. Now, amid a blaze of torches, the King himself appeared. Seated on a chair of state, he was carried on the shoulders of eight men, and surrounded by foot guards, who ran at his side. In one hand he held the mouth-piece of his hookah, which was carried by an attendant at his side. The cavalcade ended with some twenty elephants, horsemen and innumerable officers, bearing flags, umbrellas and silver sticks.—N. Y. Mail.
